Introduction

The material used in this genealogy was first collected by Mr. Harry F. Bell. Mr. Bell, of Pitts Wharf, Miona, Virginia, was the recognized local authority on the Taylor lines. He found there were three, apparently unrelated, Taylor families in upper Accomack County, and called them - the Assawoman Taylors, the Taylors of Poor House Branch and the descendants of James Taylor of Miona. Samuel T. Taylor, Ancestors and Descendants, treats only one line of this last Taylor family.

Mrs. Mary Margaret Taylor Gladding, Withams, Virginia, with the help of Mrs. Nora Miller Turman, certified genealogist, has completed a detailed, documented account of her ancestors, which is the same branch of Taylors. She has kindly allowed the use of her genealogy and, since the first five generations are common to both lines, no new research has been done on these families, except into the determination of all of Teackle Taylor's children. Mrs. Gladding's ancestor in the sixth generation was James B. Taylor, a son of Teackle; and Samuel T. Taylor, a younger son of Teackle, was his half-brother.

The material on Samuel T. Taylor has been taken from the records at the Accomack County Clerk's Office, Accomac, Virginia, and from genealogical films and references in the Eastern Shore Public Library, also at Accomac.

The data on Samuel T. Taylor's descendants comes from various sources. Mr. Bell named some of these and census records have been used for others. Public records have been searched for marriage dates. Dates of births and deaths were found on tombstones, when available. In addition, Mrs. Myrtle Sparrow of New Church, Mrs. Nettie Bull of Hallwood, Mrs. Madge Mariner of Atlantic and Mr. Pierce Taylor of Mapps ville, have supplied information.

No attempt has been made to trace the descendants of Samuel T. Taylor beyond his grandchildren, although many of them are known. With thirty grandchildren, and the time lapse, this would be a formidable task. On August 9, 1981, the descendants of one of these grandchildren, Harry S. Hurley, held a family reunion at Melbournes Landing, Maryland. There was a total of ninety-three people in attendance, representing ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth generations of Samuel T. Taylor's line.

Samuel T. Taylor
Ancestors and Descendants

Samuel T. Taylor, born 16 May 1804,¹ in Messongo, Virginia, was a sixth generation descendant of a large Taylor family in upper Accomack County, Virginia. Many of his descendants are living in the same area today.

The first member of this family on the Eastern Shore was James Taylor I, who was listed as a headright in 1663, and patented land here in 1665 and 1666. The latter grant was for 200 acres "on the north side of Messongo Creek." Before his death, he sold both of these patents and bought 100 acres between New Church and Miona near the Maryland line, where he was living at the time of his death circa 1703.² Evidence indicates that his wife, Elizabeth, was the daughter of Francis Benston.

James Taylor II lived near Oak Hall on land his father had deeded him as a gift in 1689. The date of his death is not known, but it was probably in the 1730's. He left no will but it is known that he had a number of sons, one of which was Jacob Taylor of Chincoteague. His wife's name is unknown.

Another son, in the line we are following, was again a James Taylor who also lived in the Oak Hall area. This man made his will in 1767 and it was proved in 1769. In it he named no wife but listed ten children, one of whom was Jacob Taylor, who continued the line, and who inherited part of the Oak Hall land.

Jacob Taylor bought additional land, on Messongo Creek and on the sea-side, north of Atlantic. He was living on this last purchase at the time of his death in 1798. He had been married three times, but his first wife, Sarah, was the mother of his children. The maiden names of his wives have not been found. He named five sons and four daughters in his will.

One of these sons was Teackle Taylor, who inherited land in Messongo from his father and bought other tracts during his lifetime. Teackle Taylor married Peggy Benson, the daughter of James and Scarburgh Benson, on 28 September 1790.³ She died before 1800 and he then married Comfort Lucas. There were two sons by the first marriage - Henry and James. The children by the second marriage were Hetty and Samuel T. Taylor.⁴

Teackle Taylor died before 25 January 1813 without a will, for on this date there is shown a long list of personal property in the record books,⁵ and on the

The names of Teackle Taylor's children is quite clear from the records, for the Accomack County Record Book, 1808-1819, p. 464, is found "The rent of the Sea side land is twenty dollars. The widow Thornton, widow of Jacob Taylor, father of the deceased Teackle Taylor, by bond to pay Molly Thornton, widow, annually the sum of thirteen dollars, which deducted from the rent leaves a balance of seven dollars. Thense Comfort Taylor, formerly widow of Teackle claims 1/3 of seven dollars. The balance then divided between Henry, James, Hetty and Samuel." This record also states that Shadrack Taylor was appointed guardian to Hetty and Samuel.

28 January, this property was sold at public auction by his administrator. Teackle Taylor was a man of considerable wealth, for the record of the sale covers five and a half pages.⁶

At the time of his father's death, Samuel T. Taylor was nine years of age. His mother remarried on 19 July of the same year.⁷ Her second husband was Savage Taylor and it is assumed Samuel T. Taylor was a part of this household until he was grown. During this period, his guardian paid various sums of money to James Northam and Thomas Jones for the education of Samuel T. Taylor.⁸

On 24 January 1827, Samuel T. Taylor married Critty Harmon,⁹ the daughter of John Harmon and his wife, Mary Bird Harmon.¹⁰ John Harmon gave his consent for the marriage. Jesse Kelley and John Bird were securities.

Samuel T. Taylor inherited land from his father. During the years from 1826 to 1832, he, his brothers, and sister sold a total of 168 acres of land in the Messongo area. After this time, he continued to buy and sell land until 1875, when he sold 175 acres to a grandson, Henry S. Hurley.¹¹ This seems to be the last land transaction.

⁶Ibid, p. 378. An item accompanying the sale of Teackle Taylor's personal property tells of a legacy left James Taylor by his grandmother Benson. Both Henry Taylor of Teackle and James Taylor of Teackle, bought items at the sale. Henry bought his father's watch. This record mentions Jacob Northam as guardian for Henry Taylor and James Taylor.

¹¹Accomack County Deeds, 1874-76, p. 721.

The deed books recorded an item of interest on 24 March 1843.¹² At this time, Samuel T. Taylor owed a total of $200 to James H. Fletcher, William H. B. Custis, Spencer Drummond, Isaac Harris, John Henderson and Thomas W. Harris. Edward P. Pitts was named trustee in a deed of trust on Taylor's personal property to secure the debt. This property consisted of the following: "3 horses, 6 cows, 9 sheep, 13 hogs, 2 ox carts, 1 wagon, 2 sets of harness, 1 horse cart, 5 ploughs, 4 harrow, 4 hoes, 1 scythe, 2 dung forks, 2 spades, 1 shovel, 3 axes, 1 ox chain, 3 sets of plough harness, one hundred barrels of corn, 25 bushels of oats, 8 stacks of fodder, 24 geese, 50 dunghill fowl, 3 beds of furniture, 1 dozen Winsor chairs, 1 Bureau, 1 Mantle clock, 1 watch, one gun, one mahogany table, 2 pine tables, 1 looking glass, 1 cupboard, 2 pair andirons, 1 pair sad irons, 1 bridle and saddle, 1 pair shovel and tongs, lot of cockery ware, set of books, milkhouse, five hundred lbs. of bacon, and all the other household and kitchen furniture." Samuel T. Taylor was "to remain in quiet possession of the aforesaid property till default of payment of any of the aforesaid debts."

These debts must have been paid, for there is no record of the sale of this property. However, no recorded release has been found either.

As can be seen from the listing of personal property, Samuel T. Taylor was a farmer. His farm was located in the Messongo area, on present Route 690, just south of Skin Point. The home in which he and his wife lived and raised their family can be seen today directly across the road from the Old Messongo Baptist Church graveyard.¹³ The house has been abandoned for a number of years and is falling down. The land has also been untended and grows into a pine thicket.

¹²Accomack County Deed Book, 1842-43, p. 730.

¹³Mr. Bell located this land and family members have substantiated its location.

The 1850 Federal Census¹⁴ listed this household as number 962 and gives the following members:

Samuel T. Taylor - 45 years, farmer
Crittty Taylor - 45 years, housewife
Comfort A. Taylor - 20 years
Bernette Taylor - 18 years
Deliah Taylor - 16 years
Teackle Taylor - 11 years
John Taylor - 8 years
Mary Taylor - 6 years
Elizabeth Taylor - 2 years

The incident which makes Samuel T. Taylor unusual and especially interesting to present-day descendants occurred in May 1885, when he had just turned eighty-one. It can be described most accurately by quoting the 30 May 1885 issue of the Peninsula Enterprise,¹⁵ a county newspaper of that period:

"Bennett T. W. Byrd was shot and mortally wounded by Samuel T. Taylor, near Messongo Bridge, this county, last Thursday morning. The difficulty originated between them, we are informed, about some wood on the premises of Taylor which Byrd, it seems, claimed for another party and was attempting to remove therefrom. Taylor denied Byrd's right to the wood and had requested him not to remove it. Byrd, according to the report which reaches us, it seems not only did not heed the warnings of Taylor, but attacked him with a fence stake - and in turn was shot by Taylor. The wounds inflicted upon Byrd are in the arm and side - the arm being nearly torn from the body and his side so badly lacerated that he cannot live but a few hours. Between the two parties a feud has existed for many years and the fact that it has culminated fatally was not unexpected. Taylor on Thursday surrendered himself and was committed to jail by Justice Scarborough. Mr. T. H. Bayly Browne has been employed as counsel for Mr. Taylor.

According to later advices, Mr. Byrd died of his wounds Thursday at 4 o'clock."

The 6 June 1886 issue of the same newspaper gives the results of a hearing before Justice Scarborough in the matter of the Commonwealth vs Samuel T. Taylor. These accounts were by witnesses for the prosecution. The first witness was Mr. William J. Hurley,¹⁶ who was with Mr. Byrd on his trip to haul wood. His testimony agreed essentially with the newspaper account, except for pointing out that Taylor had installed a fence around his property and Byrd was tearing it down. James Smith, who witnessed the incident from a distance, said the same. Dr. John Bowdoin gave testimony as to the wounds of Byrd and the cause of death. Thomas White's evidence was similiar to James Smith's. Washington Trader¹⁷ and George W. Kelley, who helped put Byrd in his cart after he had been shot and carried him home, did not see the actual shooting, but gave testimony that also agreed with the James Smith account.

William J. Hurley was one of Samuel T. Taylor's grandsons.

¹⁷

Washington Trader's wife was a granddaughter of Sameul T. Taylor.

This article ends with: "The evidence for the defense was not heard and it remains therefore to be seen in what way the crime of Taylor can be mitigated or excused."

The Peninsula Enterprise does not give a report of the defense hearing. They do report a motion made by Samuel T. Taylor on 1 July 1885, in which he asked for bail on the grounds that close confinement was endangering his health.¹⁸ This motion was denied, but the judge gave him the privilege of using the jail yard in the daytime for exercising.

The court records show the progress of the trial. A grand jury returned "A True Bill" on 27 July 1885.¹⁹ A jury was selected and the trial started on 28 September 1885,²⁰ but two days later the case ended in a hung jury. The 3 October 1885 issue of the Peninsula Enterprise reported that eleven of the jurors were for acquittal and one for confinement in the penitentiary for five years. Samuel T. Taylor had changed lawyers. This report names them as, Parker, Neely and Quinby. A date for a new trial was set and Samuel T. Taylor was allowed to go home on bail of $1000.

On 28 October 1885, the trial was put off until the next term of court²¹ and again on 1 December 1885.²²

²²Ibid, p. 552.

On 28 December 1885, a new jury was selected.²³ Again, the trial lasted three days, and on December 30, 1885, Samuel T. Taylor was "considered by the court that he be acquitted and discharged of the said indictment and go thereof without delay."²⁴

It is supposed that some of the family moved into the Taylor home to stay with his wife while he was in jail. It can also be guessed that she was not well at the time, for she died on 14 September 1888 and the Accomack County Register of Recorded Deaths, 1853-1896,²⁵ gives the cause of death as old age. This record gives her age as 80 years, 6 months and 9 days.

Lucretia S. Taylor left a will that was written two days before her death.²⁶ She left land known as the Burton farm to her husband, Samuel T. Taylor, and her clothes to her daughter, Mary Davis.

Samuel T. Taylor lived on for seven years after his wife's death. His death is also recorded in the Register of Recorded Deaths as on 8 February 1895. His age is given as 90 years, 8 months and 22 days. He died of paralysis. He, too, left a will which was written on 5 September 1892.²⁷ It was recorded on 25 September 1895.

In his will he loaned Lynn Kelley all his land known as the Nock Land and at his death, this tract was to go to his son, William H. Kelley. He loaned William H. Davis and Rebecca Davis, his wife, the property "where I now reside," and at their death, this was to go to two Taylor great grandsons, John Fisher and Charlie Fisher. These men also inherited land on the east side of the public road. Two other great grandsons, Daniel M. Ball and Roy T. Ball, inherited land. His daughter, Mary S. Davis, inherited the Burton Land for her lifetime and then it was to go to two grandchildren, Mollie J. Davis and Alonzo T. Davis. He left land to his daughter Delila P. Fisher and at her death, to her daughter, Middie Fisher.

Several gifts of a cow and a bed went to relatives and the remainder of his estate was left to Rebecca Davis, the wife of William H. Davis, Agent. William H. Davis was to collect all accounts, pay all bills and distribute the estate. He was also to take care of the burial, of bricking the grave, and installing tombstones.

As far as can be determined, William H. Davis and his wife were no relation to Samuel T. Taylor. Davis was the son of Noah Davis and his wife, Milly. Rebecca was the daughter of William Kelley and his wife, Rebecca. This is shown by their marriage license dated 28 March 1867.²⁸ Lynn Kelley, named at the beginning of the will, seems to have been Rebecca Davis' nephew. He and his brother, William M. Kelley, are listed in the household of William H. Davis in the 1880 census as being nine years and seven years of age, respectively. The marriage of William Morris Kelley was recorded on 12 April 1893²⁹ and his parents are given as William D. Kelley and his wife, Susan A.

In days past, another, much older house stood on the Taylor property, just south of the present house. In the 1860's, the 1870's and until the late 1880's, Comfort Anne Hurley, daughter of Samuel T. Taylor, was raising her family in this house.³⁰ The records indicate that Samuel T. Taylor was living here with the William H. Davis family at the time he wrote his will in 1892 and on until his death in 1895. This would explain why this unrelated Davis family figured so prominently in his will.

The house that still stands on the Taylor farm was part of the property willed to Daniel M. Ball. He and his wife, Hattie E. Ball of Girdletree, Maryland, sold these thirty-five acres to his cousin, Daniel W. Ball, of Hallwood, for $750 on 20 January 1941.³¹ Daniel W. Ball's widow, Lucy M. Ball, sold to Walton Spencer Darwin and Geraldine G. Darwin on 21 August 1958.³² Mr. and Mrs. Darwin lived here until his death several years ago. No sale of the property has been reported since.

Samuel T. Taylor and his wife are buried on his farm at Messongo. There are two tombstones standing on the back of this land. Descendants have been unable to reach them due to the undergrowth on the front of the farm and a large ditch on the back. Family members have indicated that some of their children are buried in the same plot.

The eldest daughter of Samuel T. Taylor and his wife, Lucritia, was Comfort Anne, b. 15 September 1824, d. 12 July 1921, who married on 29 August 1853,³³ Captain Robert W. Hurley, b. 27 August 1827, d. 15 June 1887, a waterman from Dorchester County, Maryland. She is buried at Downings Methodist Church, Oak Hall, Virginia. He died aboard his boat and was buried on an island in the Chesapeake Bay. Their children were:

Henry Savage Hurley, b. 20 January 1855, d. 12 September 1936, m. 1 August 1877, Julia A. Hall. Buried at Salem Methodist Church Cemetery, Pocomoke, Maryland.

Elizabeth Jane Hurley, b. 2 September 1857, d. 2 September 1881, m. 1875, Horace Hurley. Her grave is unknown. He is buried at Grotons Cemetery near Hallwood, Virginia, with his second wife.

Hettie Anne Hurley, b. 8 April 1860, d. 1934, m. 6 November 1878, Lloyd L. Gladding. Buried at Crisfield, Maryland.

William James Hurley, b. 9 August 1863, d. 1924, m. 30 December 1886, Mary S. Lawson. Buried in Crisfield, Maryland.

Indianna Hurley, b. 28 April 1866, d. 10 August 1890, m. 16 May 1883, Jefferson B. Marshall. It is not known where she is buried.

Mary Bernettie Hurley, b. 6 January 1869, d. 7 March 1947, m. 8 October 1884, Washington L. Trader. Buried at Downings.

Arberta Hurley, b. 16 September 1872, d. 15 September 1910, m. 17 May 1893, Amos James Hall. Buried at Salem Methodist Church Cemetery, Pocomoke, Maryland.

Latisha E. Hurley, b. 4 June 1875, d. 1967.
m. (1) John E. Sterling
(2) Littleton Sterling
Buried at Crisfield, Maryland.

The second daughter of Samuel T. Taylor and his wife was Bernette Taylor. Family members tell that she died of "brain fever" due to sun stroke, when about grown. No trace of her has been found in the county records except the 1850 census.

33

The dates of births, marriages and some deaths for this family have been taken from Robert and Comfort Anne Hurley's family Bible, published by Whilt and Yost, in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1858. This Bible is now in the possession of Mr. John H. Hurley, Salisbury, Maryland. Other death dates are from tombstone readings.

The third daughter was Deliah P. Taylor, b. 9 December 1833, d. 4 August 1913, who married circa 1855, John Decatur Fisher, b. 23 December 1834, d. 19 June 1898. They are buried at Atlantic, Virginia in the Baptist Church Cemetery. Their children were:

S. Francis (Frank) Fisher, b. 1857, d. 1908, m. 20 March 1878, Margaret Nock. They are buried at Bethel Baptist Church Cemetery, near Bloxom, Virginia.

Mary Elizabeth Fisher, b. 1858, d. 1936, m. 15 April 1874, Teackle L. Byrd. They are buried on his farm near Mappsville, Virginia, between U.S. 13 and Grotons Cemetery.

Maude Fisher, b. 25 December 1866, d. 26 November 1954, m. 20 May 1885, Edward Corbin Warner. They are buried at John W. Taylor Memorial Cemetery, Temperanceville, Virginia.

Ernest W. Fisher, b. 7 October 1871, d. 18 December 1939, m. 7 October 1894, Annie Revell. They are buried at Downings Methodist Church Cemetery, Oak Hall, Virginia.

Medora (Middie) F. Fisher, b. 1876, d. 1933, m. (1) 8 December 1895, John W. Revell; (2) 21 November 1906, C. Drummond Taylor. They are buried at Downings.

Samuel Teackle Taylor, Jr. was the fourth child. He was b. 6 December 1838, d. 15 September 1915, and on 31 October 1860, married Sarah Ann Taylor, the daughter of Zadoc Taylor and his wife, Rachel. They are buried at Bethel Baptist Church Cemetery, near Bloxom, Virginia. Their children were:

Gertrude L. Taylor, b. 1861, d. 1954, m. 23 January 1884, Obed W. Chesser. They are buried at Downings.

Joseph (Bud) W. Taylor, b. 1863, d. 1940, m. 29 October 1890, Sallie D. Byrd. They are buried at Grotons Cemetery.

Samuel (Tiggie) A. Taylor, b. 1864, d. 1964, m. 18 January 1888, Ella M. Bloxom. They are buried at Downings.

Sallie P. Taylor, b. 7 April 1868, d. 15 August 1884. Buried at Bethel.

Ambros C. Taylor, b. 23 February 1873, d. 27 May 1873. Buried at Bethel.

Cornelous Thomas Taylor, b. c. 1875, d. c. 1935, m. 25 July 1899, Alice King. They are buried in Bloxom's Cemetery between Bethel Church and Bloxom, Virginia, in unmarked graves.

William Ambrose Taylor, b. 17 July 1876, d. 5 October 1945, m. 12 January 1898, Sally Barnes. They are buried in Modest Town Baptist Church Cemetery.

Clarence Taylor, b. c. 1878, d. c. 1970, m. 28 June 1899, Maggie S. Mason. They are buried in Seattle, Washington.

John Taylor, listed as 8 years in the 1850 census, is again listed in the household of Samuel T. Taylor in 1860 as John J. Taylor, aged 18 years, and as an oysterman. This is the last positive record of him. The marriage records and later census records have been searched without finding further reference to him. Present family members do not remember hearing of him. The 1870 census does list a John J. Taylor, single, as a sailor in the area of Hunting Creek. It seems unlikely that this is the son of Samuel T. Taylor as this man's age is given as 44 years.

Mary S. Taylor, the fourth daughter of Samuel T. Taylor, b. 22 March 1844, d. 28 August 1928, married 30 December 1861, Robert Davis, the son of Henry Davis and his wife, Hetty.³⁴ They are buried in a family plot near Messongo. Their children were:

John W. Davis, b. 1864, d. 1939, m. 26 December 1888, Martha A. Tyler. They are buried at Downings.

Bernette E. Davis, b. 1866, d. 1924, m. 4 January 1883, Edward Thomas Ball. They are buried at Nelsons Cemetery at the Maryland line.

Annie Davis, b. 1866, d. 1959, m. c. 1885 Buck Chesser. They are buried in Maryland at the Spence Baptist Church between Snow Hill and Public Landing.

Samuel H. Davis, b. 31 August 1871, d. 19 November 1916, m. 7 January 1902, Lovie Hart. He is buried in the Old Messongo Baptist Church Cemetery. She remarried and is buried at Parksley, Virginia.

Hetty Davis was Hetty Trader, the daughter of Abot Trader and his wife, Molly Bayly Trader.

James Abbott Davis, b. 1875, d. 1946, m. 26 December 1897, Letitia Ball. They are buried at Grotons.

Lee Andrew F. Davis, b. 17 March 1877, d. 14 May 1951, m. 26 June 1888, in Worcester County, Maryland, Lizzie Trader. They are buried at Wessells Cemetery, near Mears, Virginia.

Mollie J. Davis, b. 30 September 1881, d. 21 October 1953, m. 15 October 1908, Roy Parks. They are buried at Downings.

Alonzo Thomas Davis, b. 1883, d. 1959, m. (1) Lina Trader, sister to Lizzie; (2) 21 September 1914, Emma Merritt. He and his last wife are buried in the Baptist Church Cemetery, Pocomoke, Maryland.

The last daughter, Elizabeth Taylor, must have died young. She is listed as 2 years in the 1850 census and is unlisted in Samuel T. Taylor's household in the 1860 census.
